Bankruptcy Case Study

Traditional network communications are a tricky business. With fewer people relying on landlines and the rise of mobile devices, telecom companies have been forced to innovate their cloud, fiber, and broadband offerings and grow inorganically to meet the market demand for faster technology.

Network providers have to play to the tune of a dangerous balancing act – juggling both diminishing cash flows and costly infrastructure expenditures. To that end, they rely heavily on the liquidity of debt markets to finance copper-wire landlines among other assets.

Windstream Holdings is a rural telecom provider with network lines that span 150,000 miles in 18 states; despite its wide range, Windstream has not been an exception to the struggle.

In 2013, the accumulating pressure pushed management to creatively widen its fiduciary mandate: Executives at the company knowingly decided to violate bond covenants in an attempt to reduce its debt load.

Two years later, this created an opportunity for an activist noteholder, Aurelius Capital Management, to build a position and publicly establish Services' default.

The following case study explains Windstream's progression into distress, an overview of transactions, and restructuring expectations.

Windstream's bankruptcy was preceded by management's decision to pursue a sale-leaseback transaction.

Debt Issue

Windstream Services issued $700MM in notes guaranteed by its subsidiaries. The indenture contains a New York choice of law provision and restrictive covenants against sale-leaseback.

HoldCo Creation

Windstream Services forms Windstream Holdings, a new parent with no operations that could execute the spin-off/leaseback transaction.

Sale-Leaseback

Services' subsidiaries transferred critical equipment to CSL in exchange for stock, debt, and cash. CSL equity was transferred to Holdings' shareholders; CSL debt was traded to pay off Services'.

Transaction Proposal

In March, management proposed to the board the idea of spinning off telecom network assets. In April, management sought board approval for a HoldCo to exist above Services.

REIT Creation

CSL was formed as a corporation and subsidiary of Services to be spun-off as a publicly traded REIT. (In early 2017, CSL changed its name to Uniti Group Inc.)

...then Aurelius decided to step in.

Notice of Default

Aurelius accrued 50%+ of the remaining aggregate principal amount of outstanding notes and issued to Services a notice of default. This triggered a 60-day cure period.

First Counterclaim

Services sued the trustee for breach of a new indenture supplement which excluded the sale-leaseback and default. Some noteholders signed this to exchange their notes for Aurelius' series.

DEC

Notice of Acceleration

The cure period expired, ripening into events of default. Aurelius then issued a notice of acceleration to Services – all principal with all accrued and unpaid interest became immediately due.

Plaintiff Action

U.S. Bank National Association, as the indenture trustee, commenced the action against Services, the defendant, pursuant to a direction from Aurelius.

Answer to Counterclaim

Aurelius challenged the note exchange with its own counterclaim and was dismissed based on the indenture's no-action clause (only trustee can act).

Conclusion of Law

The court reached a conclusion on the case that Services violated the indenture, breached the obligation of good faith, upheld the defaults, and dismissed all counterclaims.

The court's task was "not to opine on the financial wisdom of Services' decisions. Instead, its sole task is to enforce the indenture." As such the court awarded Aurelius $310MM.

Debt Exchange

In anticipation of an unfavorable settlement, Windstream restructured its debt, allowing the creditor group to exchange unsecured notes to a second lien secured note.

Chapter 11 Bankruptcy

Following the settlement, Windstream Holdings and its affiliates filed for chapter 11 bankruptcy. As of the petition, $5.7BN in long-term debt and $310MM were owed by Windstream.

Transaction aside, Windstream appeared to be a levered company struggling to manage its debt.

The sale-leaseback effectively subordinated Services' obligations since leased properties are necessary to generate cash flows.

In April 2015, transferor subsidiaries (including Services and entities restricted by the covenants) transferred 87% of Windstream's fiber lines and 82% of its copper lines to CSL. Holdings signed a triple net master lease for debt, equity, and cash – resulting in a structural subordination of Services' debt:

- 1) If Services' subsidiaries failed to pay rent, this would constitute a default on the master lease.
- 2) Following the default, CSL would be entitled to terminate the right for Services to use its assets.
- 3) Without the leased property, Services' subsidiaries would not be able to operate their business nor service their debt.

While a sale-leaseback is allowed by the indenture, all three conditions allowing for such a transaction were violated which caused default:

- The lease obligations added to existing debt put Services far in excess of the indenture's cap on leverage by $2.6BN (5.76x vs 4.50x).
- $7.45BN in assets far exceeded the $1.04BN cash consideration.
- Management used the sale proceeds to pay down notes pari passu with those held by Aurelius instead of paying down the contractually senior debt payments as specified.

This enriched WIN shareholders (who received CSL shares) at the expense of noteholders, giving Aurelius an excuse to seek a settlement two years later.

- 1) Prior to the transaction, CSL had one outstanding share owned by Services.
- 2) On the day of the transaction, Services transferred 80.4% of CSL's common stock to Holdings, and Holdings distributed CSL shares to its shareholders.
- 3) In June 2016, Services sold the remaining 19.6% to pay down $672MM owed under its revolving credit facility.

The sale-leaseback was management's ill-attempt to reduce its debt obligations by cutting corners.

The CSL non-equity payment consisted of:

Sources	$MM	Debt Issue
CSL Debt	970.2	Term Loans
	400.0	6.00% Senior Secured Notes due October 15, 2023
	1,077.3	8.25% Senior Unsecured Notes due April 15, 2023
Cash	1,035.0

CSL's 8.25% senior unsecured notes were exchanged for Services' debt:

Uses	$MM	Debt Issue
Exchange	1,700.0	Senior Secured Credit Facility, Tranche A3 due December 30, 2016
Exchange		Senior Secured Credit Facility, Tranche A4 due August 8, 2017
Exchange		Senior Secured Credit Facility, Tranche B4 due January 23, 2020
Exchange	752.2	Senior Secured Credit Facility, Revolving Line of Credit due April 24, 2020

The CSL cash payment was used to retire a $241.8MM remaining portion of the Tranche B4 as well as the following:

Uses	$MM	Debt Issue
Retire Debt	241.8	Senior Secured Credit Facility, Tranche B4 due January 23, 2020
Retire Debt	400.0	2018 Notes, 8.125% due September 1, 2018
Retire Debt	450.0	PAETEC Holding, LLC, 2018 Notes, 9.875% due December 1, 2018
Retire Debt	1.9	Cinergy Communications Company, 6.580% due January 1, 2022

* Cinergy bonds were paid using the revolver which was exchanged

Given the debt-for-debt exchange value of $1.1BN for $1.7BN, the investment banks were most likely aware of the structural subordination of Services debt since they took a $0.6BN discount on an unsecured issue.

Including the debt retirements, these changes resulted in a $3.1BN decrease in outstanding debt.

Two years later, Aurelius took it upon itself to enforce the indenture as an unsecured noteholder and CDS buyer.

In response, Windstream unsuccessfully coordinated a debt exchange to dilute Aurelius and create a new indenture to countersue the trustee.

Surprisingly, there was not much of a response to the court’s conclusion that Windstream defaulted and all obligations have become due.

Unlike the real world where a court ruling determines an indenture violation, CDS settlements are decided by the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee, otherwise known as the DC.

After the DC determined that no Failure to Pay Credit Event had occurred when Windstream failed to pay the accelerated notes (12/15/17) and when the court ruled in favor of Aurelius (02/20/19), the DC finally found that a Credit Event occurred when Windstream filed for bankruptcy on February 25th.

Interestingly, the DC chose to reject a request on the 26th that asked that the December ruling be overturned; this means that the Bankruptcy Credit Event would not result in a payout for those whose protection expired prior to the 25th.

This goes to show that having good market timing and understanding of the cash settlement process are as important as having a correct investment thesis.
